INCOME

Individuals living in America's lowest income areas are twice as likely to abuse opioids as those living in the highest income areas. 6.3% of individuals with an opioid prescription living in the lowest income areas (with an average per capita income of $40,000 or less) abused opioids, compared to 2.7% of individuals with an opioid prescription living in the highest income areas (with an average per capita income of $85,000 or higher). Analysis was based on U.S. Census income data by zip code.

- Lowest (less than $40,000)
- Low ($40,000 - $48,000)
- Middle ($48,000 - $60,000)
- High ($60,000 - $84,000)
- Highest (greater than $84,000)

Relative share of abusers (%)

Abuse rate (%)

Note: The abuse rate is defined as the share of prescription holders that abuse. Income is captured at the zip code level. Trend and group differences are all significantly different with p-value <.001.
